

Rochana Sheward

Rochana Sheward has worked all her life in the community sector and developed a knack for growing sustainable organizations both in the UK and the past 5 years in New Zealand where she is currently manager of MPHS (McLaren Park and Henderson South Community Initiative Inc) which is a geographically based community development organisation that delivers a diverse range of programmes by the community for the community. This has been built up over the past five years. All trustee, staff and volunteers are local people bringing the local back to local.

Diversifying of funding is one of Rochana hobbies / passion to ensure there is sustainability for the future. Latest venture for MPHS has been the setting up of a limited company to contract for work that could be too risky for the society to take on, as well as collaborating with other local NGO, in an enterprising spirit.
